Any criminal justice system is an apparatus that society uses to enforce the standards of conduct necessary to protect individuals and the community. It operates by apprehending, prosecuting, convicting, sentencing these members of the community who violate the basic rules of group existence. A criminal justice system is a set of legal and social institutions for enforcing the criminal law in accordance with a defined set of procedural rules and limitations. The action taken against lawbreakers is designed to serve three purposes beyond the immediately punitive one. It removes dangerous people from the community; it deters others from criminal behavior and it gives society an opportunity to attempt to transform lawbreakers into law-abiding citizens.

When a person is accused of a crime, he moves through the criminal justice system according to the process determined by the authorities that established the system. He is questioned, and evidence is collected on the crime. An attorney, often referred to as a prosecutor, determines whether there is enough evidence to request an arrest warrant be issued. Once an arrest warrant is issued, the accused enters the court phase of the criminal justice system. The exact process differs among countries, but generally during this phase, both the prosecution and the defense present evidence to convince a judge or jury that their version of events is correct. Once found guilty in a trial, he is sentenced according to criminal laws, to either jail time or some other punishment.

- 【3】17. We understand from the passage that the basic aim of criminal justice is _____.

② discourage crime
③ prevent the enforcement of capital punishment
④ investigate the reasons behind criminal behavior
- 【3】20. Once a person is found guilty in the court, _____.
① he is questioned, and evidence is collected on the crime
② an immediate action against the community will take place
③ he is sentenced according to criminal laws, to either jail time or some other penalty
④ an arrest warrant is issued from the prosecutor
